RE: Recommendation for Mr. Brian Lownsbery

To Whom It May Concern:

I have had the pleasure of knowing and working with Mr. Lownsbery at Philadelphia University for the past two years. During this time, he has displayed some qualities that I believe would make him an excellent faculty member with your school district.

Mr. Lownsbery is a dedicated student; he takes pride in preparing his course work and exploring new ways of using various digital technologies to improve the learning process. His intellectual curiosity, enthusiasm, and dedication to the teaching profession are an inspiration to his colleagues (myself included). He has excellent “people skills” and obviously enjoys learning, making it a pleasure to work with him.

Perhaps most noteworthy, however, is Mr. Lownsbery’s leadership ability. He frequently set the standard in class, and I now use some of his submitted projects as examples of excellent work. His willingness to help his colleagues, even when not required to do so, modeled and encouraged the collaborative learning required of graduate students and future educational leaders.

It is without reservation that I recommend Mr. Lownsbery as a faculty member with your school district.

Sincerely,

Russell Pritchard, Ed.D.
